CITY NOTES.

Items Gathered Here and There by Our Reportorial Corps.

Mr. J. M. Ramspu, the popular livery man, received two fine horses on the steamer Sylvester yesterday.

The Templeton Operatic Company are expected at the Saratoga Sunday. They play at Daytona Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Yesterday was a lovely Spring day. There is nothing like a daily paper to keep the citizens of a town fully informed as to what is happening in their midst.

The Gem City Guards arrived in the city on the 4 o'clock morning train yesterday from Sanford. The boys deserve great credit for the manner in which they conducted themselves at the State Fair.

Mr. M. Loeb closed his dry goods establishment and saloon yesterday, until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, in reverence of his brother-in-law's funeral, which took place in New York during the day.

The John Sylvester came up the river with a large number of passengers. She looked like an old time steamer, before the railroads divided the travel, and when Palatka's wharves were the busiest parts of the town.

Nick King was the only delinquent at the Mayor's office yesterday, his charge being intoxication and disorderly conduct, for which his Honor imposed a fine of $1 and costs. The prisoner's inability to pay resulted in labor on the streets.

The funeral of the late Charles A. Walter has been postponed from 10 o'clock this morning, as announced, to 2 o'clock this afternoon. The members of the Fire Department and the St. Johns Yacht Club will meet at their rooms at 1:30 p. m.

The City Assessor laid the assessment roll for the current year, amounting to $905,712, before the City Council at their last, meeting whereupon it was ordered that the Assessor levy the following rates on said amount, to wit: For general revenue ten mills, and for fire and water three mills on the dollar valuation.

Yacht Club Meeting.

The members of the St. Johns Yacht Club are requested to meet at their rooms at 9 o'clock this morning, to attend the funeral of Charles H. Walter. By order of the Commodore.

Warner's Log Cabin Sarsaparilla Regulates the Regulator. Best blood purifier. Largest bottle in the market. Manufactured by the proprietors Warner's Safe Cure. Sold by all druggists.

Hurrah for Jacksonville! Hip, Hip, Hurrah!

Yesterday's Times-Union.

The President goes to St. Augustine to-day as the guest of Mr. H. M. Flagler, and consequently there will be but little public ceremony connected with it. The citizens desired to have a great parade and a reception, but the President intimated to Mr. Flagler that he wanted his visit to be as unceremonious as possible, and Mr. Flagler insisted that his wishes should be complied with. Mr. Cleveland is reported as remarking yesterday that in Jacksonville he was President of the United States, but that during his brief St. Augustine stay he would be simply Mr. Cleveland.

PALATKA CROWDED

TO GREET PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

ST. AUGUSTINE DETAINS THE PRESIDENT TOO LONG.

Great Disappointment at the Inability of the President to Stop.

Twenty Minutes at the Depot for Handshaking—Mrs. Cleveland Greeted Enthusiastically.

Yesterday in Palatka was a day of great expectations. Far and wide the news had traveled that the President of the United States and his wife were to pay the city a brief visit, and that the pair whom the people delight to honor would hold a reception at the Putnam House in the evening. At different times during the day trains, regular and special, and steamers on the river, brought in the people from all directions, and as the crowds swelled the excitement and expectation ran high.

A BEAUTIFUL DAY.

Even the weather entered into the conspiracy to welcome our President and his lady to the Gem City. The land was indeed a sunny one, and all nature had a smile on her face as broad as the Heavens and as beaming as the God of Day could make it. Doubtless the song of the turtle and the alligator could be heard in the land, and as the gentle zephyrs slipped busily along the very buds on the trees audibly burst with a hearty welcome, and the blossoms opened their petals wide with a joyous welcome to our President and his wife.

THE FEW PREPARATIONS MADE.

The Putnam House was elaborately and tastefully decorated, and many of our citizens along Lemon street had made preparations for decorating and illuminating in honor of the distinguished visitors.

DOUBTFUL OF HIS COMING.

But while expectation and excitement were at its height busy rumor began to ply its tongue and the story ran through the crowds that the President was not coming. On all sides the questions and answers passed back and forth. "Is the President coming?" "Yes"—"No"—"He will only pass through without being seen"—and opinions were as various as the form the questions and answers took.

It was generally known, as announced, that a committee of Palatka's leading citizens had gone on a pilgrimage in search of a President, and the first announcements given out that it had found and secured him were pretty generally relied on as settling the question.

THE COMMITTEE TELEGRAPH.

Late in the afternoon, however, a telegram was received from St. Augustine, and which, spread out on a large white card, was displayed on the clerk's counter of the Putnam House.

"PONCE DE LEON, ST. AUGUSTINE.

"President Cleveland positively declines to stop at Palatka. Tell Barron."

The news contained in this dispatch was not generally known on the streets, and up to a late hour the greater number of the people were yet expecting the President.

THE LOUISE WATCHED FOR.

As it was known that the Presidential party would arrive on the steamer Louise, her arrival was anxiously awaited, and when her whistle was heard as she approached the wharf on her trip from the regular 8:30 train from St. Augustine the crowds poured through all the streets in a hurried endeavor to reach the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railway wharf before the expected visitors should land. A portion of the committee sent out by Palatka was on board, and great was their anxiety, lest when the news they brought should become known, the people in their disappointment would mob its representatives. As the steamer made its landing the waiting crowd ranged itself in two long lines, and anxiously peering into the faces of the embarrassed passengers who were thus compelled to run the gauntlet up the long dock, repeated the often before asked question: "Is the President coming?"

No, the President was not coming. The news was brought on this boat that the Presidential party would leave St. Augustine at 9:30 p. m., on a special train, and would take the train on the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railway and proceed immediately on his way further South.

SPECIAL TRAIN IN READINESS.

The special train provided by the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railway had been standing side-tracked near the upper depot from an early hour in the afternoon, and at about 10 p. m. it was backed down to the Laurel street depot to await the arrival of the party.

PATIENTLY WAITING.

Long before the arrival of the special train on the St. Augustine and Palatka Railway at East Palatka, the multitude of people had flocked around the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West wharves, and waited impatiently for the coming of the steamer Louise, which was to convey the President and Mrs. Cleveland and party across the St. Johns, where the Presidential train, consisting of three cars, were in waiting, having backed down to the wharves from the Lemon street station at 10 o'clock. All were anxious to see the President and the first lady of the land and everybody was asking one another when the President would arrive. As the moments sped by and the time was thought to be nigh, the excitement of the dense throng grew most intense.

THEY ARRIVE AT 11 P. M.

On returning from East Palatka, no sooner had the Louise sounded her whistle than cheers arose from the crowds that lined the wharves and streets adjacent to the water front, while the smaller craft in the river set up a perfect serenade of whistling. The surging mass of humanity was backed to the rear of the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railway warehouses and a rope was stretched to hold them at bay. This was a difficult task and as the President and Mrs. Cleveland came up the long platform hundreds of necks were craned to the utmost to get a peep at the Chief Ruler and his fair lady. Upon reaching the main entrance and as the President emerged from the building the assembled multitude parted and made an opening to the forward end of the hindmost coach.

THEY PROCEED TO THE TRAIN.

The President with Mrs. Cleveland on his arm moved deliberately along, the crowd keeping a respectful distance till within about six feet of the platform, when the people in their eagerness and excitement pressed forward more closely, and amid some little confusion and disarrangement the party mounted the platform, Mrs. Cleveland passing immediately into the coach, while the President remained standing on the platform, removing his hat while he acknowledged the greetings of the people.

THE PRESIDENT SPEAKS.

Standing a moment thus, the usual American demand for a speech was made, and cheers were enthusiastically called for and as enthusiastically responded to for the next President of the United States. In response to the shout of some one of the crowd of ardent admirers, "Sorry you can't stop in Palatka," the President responded in a hearty manner, "No more so than I." This was the only speech to be obtained.

HAND SHAKING.

As an acknowledgment, however, to the continued cheering of the crowd the President replaced his hat on his head, and stepping down on to the steps of the car held out his hand, and it was immediately grasped. This was the signal for a wild and frantic rush. As soon as it was seen by those in the rear that the President was shaking hands with the people there was a general scramble for a grasp of the coveted hand. The mass surged forward and it was with great difficulty that the ladies present could preserve an equilibrium.

MRS. CLEVELAND COMES OUT.

Meantime the demand was many times repeated for Mrs. Cleveland, and as she advanced and stood in the doorway cheer after cheer went up for the wife of the President. At last some individual, with more enthusiasm than politeness, demanded repeatedly that the lit should be held up so that Mrs. Cleveland could be more plainly seen. Mrs. Cleveland, as a response to the demand, stepped forward and crossing over to the rear platform of the car in front advanced as far as the platform would admit and leaning forward greeted the cheering crowd with a smile.

FAREWELL PALATKA.

But trains and Presidents cannot wait forever, however enthusiastic are the greetings, and soon the word was passed to stand back, and the President's train moved out, and amid cheers President Cleveland and his fair and graceful companion bade farewell to Palatka.

WHY THEY FAILED TO STOP.

The committee who visited St. Augustine to arrange for the expected visit of the President consisted of Messrs. H. L. Hart, W. J. Webb, S. J. Kennerly, Sherman Conant, W. J. Winegar, Martin Griffin, Sr., and C. R. Jones. They proceeded to the Ponce de Leon and sent in their cards, but were unable to obtain an interview, owing to the great pressure of business, till quite late. They then learned that on account of the lateness of the hour at which the reception at the Ponce de Leon would conclude it would be impossible to make any stop in Palatka. The President and Mrs. Cleveland expressed great regret at their inability to visit Palatka and its orange groves, and said it would have given them great pleasure to have taken a trip on the Ocklawaha River.
